(C) Reading Comprehension

In the past, if people wanted to keep a pet, they would go to a pet store and buy one they liked. But in recent years, pet adoption has become an alternative to going to a pet store. So, why do more and more people prefer pet adoption?

The most important reason is that by adopting a pet, you are saving a precious life. There is a limit to the number of animals that an animal shelter can accommodate. And people working in animal shelters will have no choice but to end the lives of the animals that are old and nobody comes for.

Pet adoption is a better option also for the reason that it saves you money. Animals in shelters are usually cheaper than those in pet stores. In addition, when buying a pet from a pet store, you have to spend money not only on the pet itself, but also on some extra procedures, such as getting your pet neutered or spayed and vaccinated. However, you don't have to pay for these procedures if you adopt a pet from a shelter, since most animals in shelters have already been through them.

Besides saving a life and your money, pet adoption also allows you to choose your pet from a wide variety of animals. Some big animal shelters offer more animals than pet stores do. And later you may find the pet you adopted from an animal shelter better-behaved than the one you bought from a pet store, because many animals from shelters were once someone else's pets.

In conclusion, pet adoption is not only good for you, but also for the pet you are going to take home. You will find a lovely companion for yourself while giving it a second chance of life.
